Utility, value and transaction. In mental accounting theory, framing means that the way a person subjectively frames a transaction in their mind will determine the utility they receive or expect. This concept is similarly used in prospect theory, and many mental accounting theorists adopt that theory as the value function in their analysis. It is important to note that the value function is ...

The power-interest grid: specific, unique and significant stakeholders. Mitchell et al. have noted that working with a considerable number of stakeholders can be "bewilderingly complex for managers" (p. 857). Among many stakeholder management researchers, Freeman has identified the dimensions of power and interest as being significant, and suggested the use of a "Power-Interest Grid ...
